

Monica Douglas

I earned my Bachelors of Science degree and Masters of Arts degree both from Ball State University. As an undergraduate, I earned my degree in elementary education and special education. I also completed my kindergarten endorsement during that time. The focus of my graduate degree was in emotional and behavioral disorders. Currently, I am again attending Ball State University where I am pursuing my Director of Exceptional Needs license.

I spent my first two years of my teaching career at Rushville Elementary School in my childhood hometown. Currently, I am the special education resource room teacher at Waldron Elementary School in Waldron, Indiana where I have held this position for the past 19 years. I currently serve on our school's safety team, reading leadership committee, PL 221 committee, and social committee. I also serve on our corporation's AdvancEd team.

I was recommended for the ICASE Presidential Scholarship by Dr. Robert Evans, Superintendent of Shelby Eastern Schools and Michelle Neff, Director of Special Education for Shelby Eastern Schools.
